Westpac telecommunications to be provided directly by Telstra

Westpac Banking Corporation has finalised an agreement with IBM Global Services and Telstra to change its telecommunications contractual arrangements.

In 2000 Westpac outsourced its IT and Telecommunications to IBM Global Services. The telecoms component was provided by Telstra under subcontract to IBM Global Services and was due to expire in December 2005.

As of 1 October 2004, Westpac has contracted directly with Telstra for these services. The change has been prompted by Westpac's plan to move into its new building located near Darling Harbour in 2006.

The new arrangements will enable Westpac and Telstra to work closely on the detailed planning and development of Westpac's future telecommunications needs.

IBM Global Services and Telstra have both supported this change and have worked closely with Westpac to ensure that transition occurs seamlessly, and that service delivery is unaffected. IBM Global Services will continue to provide the operational delivery of IT working closely with Telstra to deliver Westpac's requirements.

Ends.
