Subject: Potential HomeAway Acquisition Important Rules Regarding Communication

Hi Team,

As Dara announced in his email on Wednesday, we have entered into an agreement to acquire HomeAway, Inc. and its family of brands. Given that the transaction is subject to customary closing conditions, including the tender of a majority of the outstanding common stock of HomeAway and certain regulatory approvals, it has not yet closed.

What we say and do between now and closing is closely regulated by the SEC, so to avoid issues that could delay or adversely impact a closing of the transaction, it is IMPORTANT that you follow these rules:

DON'T tweet, post or otherwise communicate about the agreement between HomeAway and Expedia without PRIOR approval from Legal.

This applies to ANY communications about the transaction to customers, partners, vendors, etc., as well as most company or office-wide emails to employees.

The SEC generally requires pre-closing written communications about a tender offer (which is how the transaction is structured) to have a special legend and be filed publicly with the SEC on the same business day on which they are made. As such, you must get PRIOR approval from legal for any communications (including posts, emails, etc.) about the transaction, whether to customers, partners, etc., and even large groups of employees.

Please submit ALL proposed communications regarding this transaction to the ProjectHComms alias, and we will work with you to ensure such messages are prepared with the appropriate legend and for public filing with the SEC. Below is the legend that will be used on all such communications.

Should anyone have questions, please contact Jared Sine (jsine@expedia.com) or Mike Marron (mmarron@expedia.com) in ELCA.
