Item 8.01. Other Events.

CHS Inc. (CHS or the Company) has realigned its business organization to consist of four operating divisions: Processing, Ag Business, Energy and Business Solutions. The Company also has two supporting divisions, Finance and Shared Services.

CHS has named Jay Debertin, as a new Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer with responsibility for the Company's oilseed processing, wheat milling and Ventura Foods, LLC. CHS owns 50 percent of Ventura Foods, the nation's largest manufacturer and packager of vegetable oil-based foods products. Mr. Debertin joined the company in 1984 and has held a variety of positions in its energy operations. In 1998, he was named Vice President, Raw Material Supply, and was located in the Company's Denver, Colorado office. In 2001, he became Senior Vice President, Energy, with responsibilities including raw material supply, refining, pipelines and terminals, trading and risk management, and transportation. Mr. Debertin serves on the boards of directors of the National Cooperative Refinery Association and Ventura Foods, LLC. He earned a Bachelor's degree in Economics from the University of North Dakota in 1982 and a Master's of Business Administration degree from The University of Wisconsin – Madison in 1984.

Further, the responsibilities of the current five Executive Vice Presidents of the Company will be as follows:

Mark Palmquist is named Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer, Ag Business, responsible for grain marketing, CHS country operations, consisting of local retail businesses, animal nutrition and sunflower products; as well as its relationship with Agriliance, LLC. Agriliance is North America's leading distributor of crop input products, of which CHS owns 50 percent.

Leon Westbrook assumes the role of Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer, Energy, with leadership of the company's refined fuels, propane and lubricants business, along with related transportation, sales and marketing functions.

Thomas Larson becomes Executive Vice President, Business Solutions, with an emphasis on programs and products that support the success of member cooperatives and other agribusinesses, as well as producers. His responsibilities include Ag States Agency, Country Hedging, LLC, and a wide range of financial services, along with member services, communications, public and governmental affairs and the CHS Foundation.

John Schmitz continues as Executive Vice President and chief financial officer, responsible for legal, risk management, finance, accounting and internal audit functions.

Patrick Kluempke remains Executive Vice President, Shared Services, leading corporate planning, human resources, information technology, building and office services. In addition, Kluempke assumes responsibility for the company's Mexican foods business.

The six Executive Vice Presidents will report to John Johnson, President and Chief Executive Officer. The changes are effective January 1, 2005.
