Siemens increases pension plan assets by 2.6 billion

CFO Neubürger: Sound financial management continues to be our guiding principle.

Siemens has increased its worldwide pension plan assets by 2.6 billion. The voluntary contributions to the pension benefit schemes in Germany, the U.S. and the UK come predominantly from the Company's free cash flow. As a result of this increase, the assets of Siemens major pension plans now, at the beginning of fiscal 2003, total approximately 15.4 billion. These asset contributions underscore Siemens commitment to its conservative financial strategy also in the area of pension plan management. We acknowledge the changed situation in the capital markets and are aggressively tackling the challenges it poses. Covering our pension obligations via segregated pension assets is the only sound means of financing these long-term obligations, said Siemens CFO Heinz-Joachim Neubürger. Sound financial management continues to be our guiding principle.

By September 30, 2002, 1.8 billion had been contributed to the separate funds of the Company's major pension benefit plans, followed by another 800 million in October 2002. As part of these contributions, the plan assets of Siemens Pension Trust e.V., which covers the Company's German pension obligations, were increased by 2.1 billion. Management also approved voluntary contributions to the pension benefit schemes in the U.S. and the UK. At September 30, 2002, the pension obligations of the Company's major pension plans added-up to 19.6 billion. Including the voluntary contributions made in the current 2003 fiscal year, the shortfall of 6.8 billion at September 30, 2002 prior to funding was reduced to 4.2 billion. This corresponds with a level of underfunding of around 20%.

These moves are a response to severe stock price erosion in the international financial markets and to an adjustment of the discount rate used to determine future pension obligations.

Net corporate expense for retirement plans and pension-related commitments within the Siemens organization totaled 250 million in fiscal 2002, compared to earnings of 279 million a year earlier. For the current 2003 fiscal year, corporate expenses will increase to around 760 million.

This increase is due primarily to the following changes in major parameters:

Following adjustments in the overall asset allocation, the expected return on plan assets will decline for the domestic pension trust from 8.25% to 6.75%, for all of Siemens major pension plans together from 8% to 6.8%.

The assumptions used in determining pension obligations are changing. The discount rate for the domestic pension trust has decreased from 6% to 5.75%, for all of Siemens major pension plans together from 6.2% to 5.95%.

In addition, accumulated unrealized losses on plan assets at September 30, 2002 increased from the prior year. These losses, adjusted for certain amounts in accordance with US GAAP, will be amortized over the next 15 years.

Furthermore, the service cost for benefits earned by active employees during the current fiscal year is scheduled to increase as planned.
