Item 2. Acquisition or Disposition of Assets.

On December 24, 2003, Laidlaw Global Corporation has agreed to the sale to an unrelated New York based private Limited Liability Corporation of the trademarks owned to the "Laidlaw" name for a consideration in cash and liability forgiveness equivalent to $ 75,000. Laidlaw Global Corporation intends to start operating under the DBA name of Galaxy Consulting and is in the process of effecting registration of its business name assumption wherever the Corporation is set to do business. A name change process for the name of the Corporation and some of its subsidiaries is intended in the near future.

Item 5. Other Events

The leasing obligation of the corporation to Pullman Bank has resulted in a default judgment against the corporation. The corporation intends to attempt to negotiate the matter in order to maintain its ability to continue with its current Business Plan. Another litigation filed by Information Leasing Corporation for lease obligations guaranteed by the Corporation for some of its past subsidiaries also threatens the viability of the Corporation to continue operations. Management intends to attempt a negotiation of terms that will allow it to maintain the continuity of the Corporation. However, as previously mentioned in previous quarterly filings, any failure of the Corporation to satisfactorily resolve matters with these type of litigants will affect the very survival of the Corporation.
