BT DELIVERING GROWTH THROUGH TRANSFORMATION

Edgar Filing: BT GROUP PLC - Form 6-K

This release is a summary of the presentation given at BT Group's Annual General Meeting in Harrogate by BT Chairman Sir Christopher Bland.

BT's strategy is delivering growth through transformation. That was the key message delivered today by BT Chairman Sir Christopher Bland when addressing shareholders at the company's Annual General Meeting in Harrogate, Yorkshire. Describing last year as an "excellent year for BT", Sir Christopher highlighted the strong growth in turnover, earnings per share, free cash flow and dividends:

- Turnover up 2 per cent (1)
- Earnings per share up 7 per cent (2)
- Free cash flow up 10 per cent
- Dividends up 22 per cent.

Sir Christopher said: "BT's strategy is working. That strategy is to transform BT through generating strong and increasing revenues from our new wave services - such as broadband and networked IT services - at the same time as defending our traditional businesses such as voice telephony. Success in both areas depends on building long-term partnerships with customers. It also depends on having excellent infrastructure - and the 21st century network, in which we are investing, will enable us to provide services which are both world-class and cost effective."

Reviewing the year, Sir Christopher highlighted the 32 per cent growth in new wave revenues, saying "BT is growing again". These revenues - from broadband, networked IT services and mobility - grew to GBP4.5bn and now account for almost a quarter of BT's total revenues. The 32 per cent(1) increase more than offset the 5 per cent(1) decline in traditional revenues, something that has happened for five quarters in a row.

(1) Excluding impact of acquisitions and mobile termination rate reductions

(2) Before goodwill amortisation and exceptional items

Referring to BT's dividend policy, Sir Christopher said this year's dividend was five times greater than that of 2001/2 and reaffirmed that dividends are expected to reach 60 per cent of earnings next year. He also said that, subject to the company's overall financial position, BT expects the payout ratio to reach two-thirds of underlying earnings by 2007/8.

Turning to the recently proposed regulatory settlement, he said: "The solution is based on proposals BT made to Ofcom and which Ofcom has now accepted subject to formal consultation. It has been a tough journey but the outcome is the right one - regulation where it is needed: and de-regulation where it is not."

Sir Christopher also talked about BT's efforts to run our operations responsibly and play a constructive role in society. He said: "That role has an important environmental dimension because communications enable people to avoid travel and therefore help to conserve energy and combat climate change."

Referring to BT's decision to sign the world's largest green energy contract, he added: "What this means in practice is that almost all of BT's UK electricity needs will be met from environmentally-friendly, sustainable sources, including wind generation, solar, wave and hydroelectric schemes. This contract is expected to enable BT to avoid 325,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide emissions each year, equivalent to the amount produced by more than 100,000 cars."

Summing up, Sir Christopher said: "Our most lasting contribution to society will be the one we make through transforming the way people communicate in homes, businesses, offices, factories, schools and hospitals throughout Britain and beyond. The activities and results we have achieved in 2004/5 show that we are leaders in building this new communications landscape."
