Item 1.01. Entry into a Material Agreement.

On February 16, 2010, SCOLR Pharma, Inc., a Delaware corporation (the “Company” or “SCOLR”), and RedHill Biopharma Ltd., an Israeli corporation (“RedHill”) entered into a binding term sheet (the “Agreement”), which sets forth certain terms and conditions of a license agreement between the parties.

The Agreement contemplates the negotiation of a definitive license agreement under which RedHill would obtain exclusive worldwide rights to market and sell Ondansetron tablet formulations based on SCOLR’s proprietary controlled delivery technology (CDT®). The Agreement sets forth the basic terms of the contemplated licensing agreement, subject to definitive documentation and completion of due diligence by RedHill. The terms include an agreement by RedHill to make certain payments to SCOLR up to $600,000 based on achievement of certain regulatory milestones, and thereafter to make payments to SCOLR up to a maximum of $30 million based on the aggregate net sales by RedHill of the licensed product over a ten year period.

Additionally, the Agreement provides for a ninety day exclusivity period during which SCOLR is prohibited from engaging in negotiations related to the product contemplated to be licensed to RedHill with any other party. Further, the Agreement provides that either SCOLR or RedHill shall pay to the other a termination fee in the amount of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) in the event that SCOLR or RedHill is unable to execute the licensing agreement under certain circumstances after the satisfactory completion of due diligence.
